

RESUME HOSTILITIES WITH ROMANIA! BUT ADRIANOPE

*Allies Declare They Will Live Turkey
From Europe; Skirmishes Take Place in Front Tchatalja*

LONDON, Feb. 3. The Balkan war has been resumed. The bombardment of Adrianople began at 7 o'clock tonight and a small skirmish occurred at the Tchatalja lines. The armistice had lasted exactly two months.

Bulgaria has turned a deaf ear to the remonstrances of the powers, and unless Turkey yields to the Balkan demands the allies' armies will now attempt to drive her completely out of Europe.

According to a dispatch from Belgrade tonight, Scutari already is on the point of falling. It is reported that the Turkish commander has sent two representatives to the Serbian commander to postpone the capitulation of that town.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, in an interview in Paris tonight, said he had promised Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, that if the Turks immediately accepted the allies' conditions, they would conclude peace, but whatever happened there would be no further armistice.

Situation is Gloomy.
Sir Edward Grey had a long interview with the king today after which he attended a brief meeting of the ambassadors' conference, but nothing of importance was transacted, there being no new developments since Saturday.

Dr. Daneff, head of the Bulgarian delegation, in an interview in Paris tonight, said he had promised Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, that if the Turks immediately accepted the allies' conditions, they would conclude peace, but whatever happened there would be no further armistice.

That ambassador was right who predicted that if driven to despair the Turks would fight like wild animals.

Rumania and Bulgaria Disagree.
A diplomatic indiscretion has revealed the contents of the protocol between Rumania and Bulgaria recently signed at London. Rumania claims the frontier between Turtukal, on the Danube, 28 miles to the west of Silistria, and Baitjik, on the Black sea, while Bulgaria offers only the frontier beginning at Silistria, and excluding that town, but including its surroundings, descending in a straight line to the east of Dobrich as far as Baitjik.

Thus, while Rumania lays claim to Turtukal, Silistria, Dobrich, Kavarna and Baitjik, Bulgaria offers only

Special to The Gazette.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 3.—Controlling enough votes to secure, for the first time in two years, two directors on the board, the James P. Burns faction, at the Isabella Mines company's annual meeting today, upset predictions and practically gained control of the company.

John T. Hawkins and Ira Harris, members of the Burns faction, were elected directors. R. T. Quenlin, E. S. Quenlin and E. M. Kirtion were elected by the rival factions. Gardner and Kirtion controlling 405,300 votes; Quenlin and Young, 405,300; Carson and McDonald, 405,300; and Harris and Hawkins, 405,300. The Burns faction alone had 48,178, which, pooled with the Hunt proxies, gave the rebel force its power. The other factions controlled enough votes to elect one director.

Out of the 2,500,000 shares of stock, 2,055,000 were represented. The directors will meet in Colorado Springs in a few days for organization. It is expected that the Burns directors will secure the official control of the management of the company, which they have been after for some time.

DISCOVER ANARCHIST PLOT TO MURDER KING ALFONSO

CORBIERE, France, Feb. 3.—An anarchist plot has been discovered at Huelva, Spain. Prof. Francisco Sanchez of the Barcelona Modern school, Emilio Barral and Antonio Olivera, the latter two well-known anarchists, have been arrested.

The Spanish authorities attach the greatest importance to the arrests. It is alleged that the conspirators intended to organize a series of attempts against the life of King Alfonso and the principal officials identified with the monarchy, and that Sanchez had received a mission to assassinate Antonio Maura before February 5.

COURT DECISION FAVORS SHOE CONCERN

*Noncompetitors Can Combine.
Says Federal Tribunal of
Last Resort*

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The supreme court of the United States held in effect today for the first time that the Sherman antitrust law does not forbid the mere combining of noncompetitors in an industry.

The decision was given in the 'shoe machine' case in which Solicitor General Bullitt for the government had contended that if the combination brought into one hand an 'undue proportion' of the trade it was forbidden by the antitrust law.

PUJO REPORT TO EMBODY REFORMS

EXPECT TO ENCOUNTER OPPOSITION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The house banking and currency committee is preparing to consider the report of that body on the money trust, which chairman Pujo, with the aid and assistance of Samuel Insull, prepared for the Pujo subcommittee on its drafting.

A meeting of the subcommittee has been called for Wednesday to consider routine business, and even thereafter the committee will take up the 'money trust' report. It will be well before the end of the session when the report, which is embodied in recommendations, will be worked through the subcommittee and the full committee to the house.

Belmont Pujo has described his office, and is working day and night to bring his version of the report, which will be submitted to the subcommittee, where it is expected to encounter its first difficulties. The report, as framed by Mr. Pujo, will embrace recommendations on the following principle points:

Provisions of Report.
Regulation of stock exchanges, through the postoffice department, by forbidding the use of the mails for transmitting of certain transactions deemed evil, such as short sales, manipulation, and the establishment of false values.

Regulation of clearing houses through an act making their incorporation a condition precedent to the membership of national banks in such organizations, charters to eliminate the regulation of interest or exchange charges by clearing houses.

Stringent provisions to prevent national banks or their officers from participating in syndicate operations of new securities.

Expect Strong Opposition.
Opposition is looked for both in the subcommittee and in the full committee to the recommendations. The proposition, which will cause the most trouble, it is believed, will be that to prevent 'trusts' and 'monopolies' in interstate commerce, which will be the recommendation on this point in the Pujo-Insull report has not yet been decided. No matter what it is, it will be opposed, largely on the ground that the federal government has no jurisdiction to interfere.

When the full committee begins consideration of the report, the members of the Glass subcommittee, which has been conducting an independent investigation of the currency problem, will join in the debate. There has been considerable friction between the two ends of the committee.

Chairman Pujo plans to complete his report shortly after Mr. Undermyer returns from examining William Rockefeller, at Jekyll Island. They expect to start for the south on Thursday and to return as soon as possible.

Cost $25,000 to Become
'KANSAS ZED' SAYS HAMES

"We are $25,000 in debt. Our taxes are more than 5 per cent per annum. Why? Because we are Kansasized instead of being Americanized."

This inscription, painted in white letters on a large blackboard, has been hung up in front of the Hoffman house, Colorado city, by N. B. Hames. Asked as to its meaning, Hames said last night:

"Kansasized means that everything is shrieved up; that there is no life in anything. The big job we have out for us, here and all over the state, is to 'westernize' things."

"When this was a western town, we put through a lot of public improvements, and paid for them out of the city revenue. The taxes were not increased. As things now are, the city is in debt about $25,000, and the taxes have been getting bigger all along."

That Colorado Springs and Manitou will secure the grant of about 15,000 acres of government land on the north and east slopes of Pikes Peak, to add to the watersheds of the two municipal systems, is virtually assured. The United States

NELSON AGAIN IN SHADOW OF PRISON

*Case Eventually Goes to State
Supreme Court and
Action Stayed*

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 3.—Another attempt to place William R. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, in jail for contempt of court, was blocked today when Sheriff Edwin Winstanley repudiated in the Kansas City court of appeals a motion filed in his name by friends of the court of Circuit Judge William A. Guthrie, who sentenced Nelson to one day in jail for contempt, asking that a writ of habeas corpus upon which Mr. Nelson was released Saturday be quashed. The appellate court then certified the case to the state supreme court, where months may pass before the case is heard in the regular order of the docket.

As soon as the hearing on the motion to quash the writ of habeas corpus and return the order to the custody of the sheriff began, Charles Shannon, attorney for the sheriff, asked that the motion be dismissed, saying that the motion was not filed by Sheriff Winstanley but by his authority, and that the sheriff therefore repudiated his signature and asked that the motion be disregarded.

Attorney C. H. Dean, one of the friends of the court, whose names were affixed to the motion to quash, told the court that the motion had been shown to Sheriff Winstanley, into whose custody Mr. Nelson went after conviction by Judge Guthrie, as a matter of courtesy. He said they were not trying to use the sheriff's name, but sought to affix it courteously. He said that the sheriff refused to sign the motion until advised to do so by his attorney, but later, when Judge Guthrie had informed them by telephone that the sheriff had approved the action, his name was placed on the motion.

"Something seems curious," said Mr. Dean. "We all know Judge Guthrie did not tell us a falsehood."

Mr. Dean attempted to argue the motion to quash the habeas corpus, but was stopped by the order of the court certifying the case to the supreme court, and holding that the bond given by Mr. Nelson was sufficient to secure his appearance before the supreme court. The status of Mr. Nelson, who is at liberty on bail, therefore will not be changed.

"Personally, it does not make a particle of difference to me what becomes of this matter," Judge Guthrie said, in a conference with attorneys prior to today's hearing. "I did my duty as I saw it in the matter under my oath of office. The responsibility in the future rests with other officials and not with me. I am done."

There was talk among attorneys and officials at the court house today that Judge Guthrie would issue a citation for contempt against Judge Ralph S. Latham of the criminal court, who criticized Saturday the circuit judge's action in sentencing Mr. Nelson.

"I probably could be cited for contempt," Judge Latham said, "but I am ready for the summons should it come."

Frank P. Walsh, attorney for Mr. Nelson, left here tonight for Jefferson City, where, at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning, he will apply to the state supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus for the editor.

PAINTERS MEET IN DENVER
DENVER, Feb. 3.—Delegates from the United States and Canada are arriving today for the twenty-ninth annual convention of the International Association of House Painters and Decorators, which opens its business sessions here tomorrow. This evening the visitors were guests of the local branch of the organization at a reception. The convention is scheduled to close February 7.

The improvements that will be made to the Colorado Springs water system, in event of the final passage of the bill, include a pipe line to connect two of the large reservoirs, and thus prevent all chances of pollution, the construction of the crater reservoirs and enlargement of the present reservoirs.

Manitou already has started work on a $400,000 reservoir near French creek, and probably will spend several additional thousands of dollars when the bill finally is passed.

Under the bill, the two cities not only can fence and patrol the lands, but may make regulations to arrest and punish trespassers. The forestry department will assist in patrolling and reforesting the lands.

Mayor Avery, who has been in Washington for several weeks in getting the bill through the senate, expects to remain there until the bill is sent to the joint committee of the house and senate. It is expected that the conference on the bill will be held this week.

LITTLE HOPE OF SETTLING STRIKE

UNION HEADS STRUGGLE FOR LEADERSHIP

Expect Buffalo Will Be Next City to Join New York, Boston and Rochester

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—An apparent struggle for leadership between higher officers of the United Garment Workers union, a feeling of discontent among the thousands of workers because of the few strike benefits paid, and the continued bargaining between union representatives and manufacturers over terms of settlement, marked today the opening of the sixth week of the clothing strike of 100,000 men, women and girls.

Conflicting statements, purporting to come from officers of the union, as to when a vote would be taken on the offer of the manufacturers for a six-day week with no increase, left in doubt what action the leaders were taking to end the struggle. President Hingston of the union declared emphatically today that a vote would be taken Wednesday and announced Thursday Henry Waxman, treasurer of the union, declared that a vote already had been taken and would be announced shortly.

Grant Small Increase.
The Associated Boys Clothing Manufacturers, comprising a group of employers of about 15,000 workers, agreed after a conference today to grant an increase of 10 per cent, a 54-hour week and tacit recognition of the union. This agreement, it was announced at union headquarters, would not be accepted, since it did not embody all the demands of the strikers. The refusal of the Wrapper, Kimono and House Dress Manufacturers association to agree to the union's demands for so-called collective bargaining prevented a settlement in that department.

The striking white goods workers received today a substantial aid from Mrs. T. L. Chaddourne, a prominent suffragist, who presented a check for $1,000 to the Women's Trade Union league, to be distributed as a benefit for the white goods workers on strike.

Buffalo Expects Strike.
ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Buffalo will probably be the next city to join New York, Boston and Rochester as the scene of a garment workers' strike. The union leaders here declared today that a general strike will be called in Buffalo before the end of the week, because manufacturers there are doing work for the New York and Rochester factories.

TARIFF IS DISCUSSED BY
DEMOCRATS IN COMMITTEE
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The chemical schedule of the tariff law, providing 4 per cent of the total government revenue from customs, was considered in executive session by the Democrats of the house committee on ways and means today. Many of the items taken up were raw materials used in the manufacture of medicines, paints, dyes and in tanning and dyeing processes, coal tar products and the like.

The schedule will not be materially altered from the Democratic bill which passed the house last session by a vote of 179 to 127 when the present Governor Hanna of North Dakota, the only Republican, voted with the Democrats for the measure. The revenue of $12,000,000, gained from the chemical schedule last year will not be substantially disturbed.

INCOME TAX IS ADOPTED IN 38 STATES

Sixteenth Constitutional Amendment Is Soon to Become a Law

WILL RAISE $100,000,000
One of Most Important Measures Enacted in Recent Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Direct taxes upon the incomes of citizens of the United States, whether derived from idle capital or from the conduct of business, were made possible today by the ratification of the sixteenth amendment to the federal constitution at Delaware, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Indorsing the income tax amendment through their respective legislatures, completed a list of 38 states that have approved it, two more than the three-fourths necessary for its final ratification.

Leaders in congress predicted tonight that through this authorization the law which will be passed to levy the tax upon American incomes will be introduced as soon as the extra session opens. Its exact terms have not been decided upon, but it is believed it will exempt all incomes below $4,000 or $5,000, and will provide a tax of 1 per cent upon the majority of personal incomes that do not run to an excessive figure.

Informal notice of the final adoption of the new amendment was given to the senate today by Senator Brown of Nebraska, who introduced the discussion in 1909 upon which the proposal for an income tax was submitted to the states. The drafting of the bill to put the tax into effect, it is expected, will fall to the lot of Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, a member of the house ways and means committee, who drew the original tax bill proposed last year by the Democratic house of representatives but which did not become a law.

Supplants Corporation Tax.
The income tax will be designed to supplant the present corporation tax and will apply to the incomes of individuals, firms and corporations. In a statement tonight, Representative Hull declared he favored making the new tax an integral part of the financial system of the United States, to remain in full force without regard to the character of tariff bills that conditions may enact from time to time.

One feature which it is believed will be included in the law will be (Continued From Page One)

ASSEMBLY SETTLES DOWN TO BUSINESS

Committees Busy Sorting Out Various Bills That Were Introduced

By WALTER LAWSON WILDER.
DENVER, Feb. 3.—With the time past for the introduction of bills, the general assembly is settling down to its regular work. The committees of the house and senate are busily engaged in sorting out the mass of measures that have been presented, and enough bills have been favorably reported to keep both houses busy with routine work.

This afternoon the house passed on second reading, by unanimous vote, Mrs. Lee's bill prohibiting the publication of the names or pictures of children accused of criminal acts or appearing in court as witnesses in such cases. As reported by the committee, the bill defined children as persons under 21 years of age. Representative Dalley of Aspen, himself a newspaper man, first moved an amendment fixing the age limit of publicity at 16 years, but afterward consented to a change to 18. Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Riddle, the two men members of the house, opposed the change. Mrs. Riddle saying she would be glad to have the age raised to 40, as she thought the publication of names and pictures in such cases was disgraceful and demoralizing. Mr. Dalley's amendment was adopted, however, and then the bill passed in committee of the whole by unanimous viva voce vote.

El Paso County Helped.
The house also passed, on second reading, Representative Ashton's bill increasing the working force of county courts for counties of the second class. This bill, which applies only to El Paso and Pueblo counties, provides that the judge of the county court may appoint a clerk who shall receive a salary not to exceed $1,500 annually, together with such other clerical assistance as the judge may deem necessary, and also a shorthand reporter who shall receive not to exceed $125 a month. In moving a favorable report upon the bill, Mr. Ashton

WORST EVIL IS BAD TEMPER, SAYS HART

That bad temper is the worst evil of the day, and that Christian Science is responsible for the spirit of untruthfulness that he declared to be abroad in the land, were two of the assertions made by Dean H. Martyn Hart of St. Johns cathedral, Denver, in his sermon yesterday afternoon at the Colorado college vespers service.

Dean Hart spoke on the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians. His sermon dealt with the attributes of discipline. Two of those which he especially emphasized were good temper and kindness.

"We Anglo-Saxons have had the gospel 19 centuries," he declared, "and yet we have not learned to control our temper. He contrasted the short-tempered Englishman in Indian with the native Indian, with his uniform courtesy."

"Nothing is more baneful and more painful than a bad temper," he asserted. "Nothing destroys so many households. I had rather have drunkenness, impurity, anything, in the family than bad temper. Nothing is more damaging, more damning. It doesn't require profanity to display bad temper. The wooden swearing in the slamming of a door is as bad as profanity."

Speaking of sincerity, Dean Hart declared there is lying everywhere in the modern world. Christian Science, he asserted, is responsible for much of this untruthfulness. For it denies such self-evident facts as sin and disease. "The true, speak truth," urged the dean.

There are, he said, nine attributes of divine love. Besides good temper and sincerity, the others are patience, kindness, humility, generosity, courtesy, unselfishness and guilelessness.

In speaking of generosity he quoted a verse from Ecclesiastes: "There is nothing more wicked thing on earth than a covetous man." God invariably brings near you those you can help," he said.

"The greatest evil," he said, "is not murder, but not to love God. The man whose heart is God's and who loves God cannot be rude. Courtesy is love in action."

In beginning his sermon Dean Hart called attention to the fact that Sunday was a remarkable day. It was Candlemas day and Quinquagesima Sunday (the first Sunday before Lent). Lent will fall on an earlier date this year than for 50 years, it being possible for Easter to be only one day earlier than it will be this year.

RESUME HOSTILITIES WITH BOMBARDMENT OF ADRIANOPLE

Allies Declare They Will Drive Turkey
From Europe; Skirmishes Take Place in Front of Tchalja

LONDON, Feb. 3. The Balkan war has been resumed. The bombardment of Adrianople began at 7 o'clock tonight, and a small skirmish occurred at the Tchalja lines. The armistice had lasted exactly two months.

Bulgaria has turned a deaf ear to the remonstrances of the powers, and unless Turkey yields to the Balkan demands the allies' armies will now attempt to drive her completely out of Europe.

According to a dispatch from Belgrade tonight, Serbia already is on the point of falling. It is reported that the Turkish commander has sent two representatives to the Serbian commander to postpone the capitulation of that town.

Dr. Daneff head of the Bulgarian delegation in an interview in Paris tonight, said he had promised Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, that if the Turks immediately accepted the allies' conditions they would conclude peace but whatever happened there would be no further armistice.

Situation Is Gloomy.

Sir Edward Grey had a long interview with the king today after which he attended a brief meeting of the ambassadors conference, but nothing of importance was transacted, there being no new developments since Saturday. Zeman Nizami Pasha, the second Turkish delegate, will leave London tomorrow to resume his ambassadorial duties at Berlin. He said tonight that from information received from military sources, he believed the allies underestimated the condition of the Turkish army and would find themselves confronted by a redoubtable enemy—the best Mussulman warriors veterans, from Arabia, who had fought under Izzet Bey, and tried soldiers and good marksmen lately engaged in Tripoli under Enver Bey and Fethy Bey. He added:

"That ambassador was right who predicted that if driven to despair the Turks would fight like wild animals."

Rumania and Bulgaria Disagree.

The diplomatic indiscretion has revealed the contents of the protocol between Rumania and Bulgaria recently signed at London. Rumania claims the frontier between Turtukal on the Danube 25 miles to the west of Silistria and Baitjik on the Black sea, while Bulgaria offers only the frontier beginning at Silistria, and excluding that town, but in including its surroundings, descending in a straight line to the east of Dobrich as far as Baitjik.

Thus, while Rumania lays claim to Turtukal, Silistria, Dobrich, Kavarna and Baitjik Bulgaria offers only

Special to The Gazette

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 3.—Controlling enough votes to secure, for the first time in two years, two directors on the board, the James F. Burns faction, at the Isabella Mines company's annual meeting today, upset predictions and practically gained control of the company.

John T. Hawkins and Ira Harris, members of the Burns faction, were elected directors. R. T. Quantin, E. S. Quenon and E. M. Kirtan were elected by the rival factions. Gardner and Kirtan controlling 685,800 votes; Quantin and Young, 440,587; Carson and Yeomans, 406,825; Lunt and Harris, 181,815, while Burns and Hawkins alone had 461,174, which, pooled with the Lunt proxies, gave the rebel force its power. The other factions controlled enough votes to each name one director.

Out of the 2,500,000 shares of stock, 2,095,000 were represented. The directors will meet in Colorado Springs in a few days for organization. It is expected that the Burns directors will secure the official control of the management of the company, which they have been after for some time.

DISCOVER ANARCHIST PLOT TO MURDER KING ALFONSO

CANBERRA, France, Feb. 3.—An anarchist plot has been discovered at Huelva, Spain. Prof. Francisco Sanchez of the Barcelona Modern school, Eusebio Barrai and Antonio Oliveria, the latter two well-known anarchists, have been arrested.

The Spanish authorities attach the greatest importance to the arrests. It is alleged that the conspirators intended to organize a series of attempts against the life of King Alfonso and his principal officials identified with the monarchy, and that Sanchez had received a mission to assassinate Antonio Maura before February 3.

COUR DECISION FAVORS SHOE CONCERN

Noncompetitors Can Combine.
Says Federal Tribunal of
Last Resort

TO CONTINUE PROSECUTION

Government Will Push
the Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The supreme court of the United States held in effect today for the first time that the Sherman anti-trust law does not forbid the mere combining of non-competitors in an industry. The decision was given in the shoe machine trust case in which Solicitor General Bullitt for the government had contended that if the combination brought into the hands of an undue proportion of the trade it was forbidden by the anti-trust law.

The disintegration, aimed at by the statute, does not extend to reducing all manufacturers to isolated units or the lowest degree of decentralization. Holmes in announcing the unanimous decision of the court that the mere organization of the United Shoe-Machinery company by the heads of several noncompetitive groups of shoe manufacturers had not been in violation of the law.

Refers to Old Cases

The justice continued to say that it is as lawful for one corporation to make every part of a steam engine and to put the machine together as it would be for one to make the boilers and another to make the wheels. In explanation of this concise statement of law, he referred to the court's recent Minnesota creamery decision, and the older Swift & Co. decision in which it was held that an intent to monopolize was an element of an attempt to monopolize. The bringing of noncompetitive branches of a trade into juxtaposition alone by means of a corporation, he said, in substance, did not furnish sufficient "intent" to raise the conduct to the dignity of an attempt to monopolize.

Despite today's decision, officials of the department of justice declared that the United Shoe-Machinery company would be prosecuted for the alleged criminal violation of the Sherman law under the one remaining count of the indictments returned against the company, the validity of which was sustained by the lower court.

That count which was not before the supreme court, charged in effect that the company was monopolizing the industry by combination, by tying the various shoe machines together, by the destruction of competition, and by the acquisition of competitors' business. Officials vigorously maintained that the decision did not affect the government's case on this count.

The strongest feature of the government's effort to show an unlawful combination in restraint of trade, said Solicitor General Bullitt, was the "tying" clause of the agreements by which it is alleged that the company sought to compel shoe manufacturers to buy machines from it and none other. That question, he declared, was not considered by the court because the lower court had interpreted the

Regulation Stock Exchanges

Recommendations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The use of the word "reform" in the title of the report of the Pujo committee on the money trust, which was made public today, indicates that the committee expects to encounter opposition. A meeting of the committee was held today to discuss the report. The committee will take up the most important report. It will be all before the end of the session when the report will be brought before the committee. A meeting of the committee was held today to discuss the report. Attorney P. H. Deane, who is in charge of the committee's work, said that the committee expects to encounter opposition. A meeting of the committee was held today to discuss the report. The committee will take up the most important report. It will be all before the end of the session when the report will be brought before the committee.

Provisions of Report

The report of the committee on the money trust, which was made public today, indicates that the committee expects to encounter opposition. A meeting of the committee was held today to discuss the report. The committee will take up the most important report. It will be all before the end of the session when the report will be brought before the committee.

Expect Strong Opposition.

Opposition is looked for both in the subcommittee and in the full committee to the recommendations. The proposition which will cause the most trouble, it is believed, will be that to prevent "interlocking directorates" by requiring that no man shall hold more than one position in any of the money trusts. This proposition has not yet been decided. No matter what it is, it will be opposed, largely on the ground that the federal government has no jurisdiction to interfere.

When the full committee begins consideration of the report, the members of the Glass subcommittee, which has been conducting an independent investigation of the currency problem, will join in the debate. There has been considerable friction between the two ends of the committee. Chairman Pujo plans to complete his report "shortly" after Mr. Tamm returns from examining William Rockefeller, at Jekyll Island. They expect to start for the south on Thursday and to return as soon as possible.

NELSON AGAIN IN SHADOW OF PRISON

Case Eventually Goes to State
Supreme Court and
Action Stayed

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 3.—Another attempt to place William R. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, in jail for contempt of court was blocked today when the state supreme court refused to issue a writ of habeas corpus for which Nelson was applying. The application was made by the state supreme court where months may pass before the case is heard in the regular order of the docket.

As soon as the hearing on the motion to quash the writ of habeas corpus and return the editor to the custody of the sheriff began, Charles Stuart, attorney for the sheriff, asked that the motion be postponed until after the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus for which Nelson was applying.

Goes to Supreme Court

Attorney C. H. Deane, who is in charge of the committee's work, said that the committee expects to encounter opposition. A meeting of the committee was held today to discuss the report. The committee will take up the most important report. It will be all before the end of the session when the report will be brought before the committee.

Mr. Deane attempted to argue the motion to quash the habeas corpus but was stopped by the order of the court certifying the case to the supreme court, and holding that the bond given by Mr. Nelson was sufficient to secure his appearance before the supreme court. The status of Mr. Nelson, who is at liberty on bail, therefore will not be changed.

"Personally, it does not make a particle of difference to me what becomes of this matter," Judge Guthrie said, in a conference with attorneys prior to today's hearing. "I did my duty as I saw it in the matter under my oath of office. The responsibility in the future rests with other officials and not with me. I am done."

There was talk among attorneys and officials at the court house today that Judge Guthrie would issue a citation for contempt against Judge Ralph S. Latham of the criminal court who criticized Saturday the circuit judge's action in sentencing Mr. Nelson.

"I probably could be cited for contempt," Judge Latham said, but I am ready for the summons should it come."

SPRINGS-MANITOU LAND BILL PASSES U.S. SENATE

Virtually Assured That Municipalities Will Secure 'Watershed Tract' on Slopes of Pikes Peak

That Colorado Springs and Manitou will secure the grant of about 15,000 acres of government land on the north and east slopes of Pikes Peak, to add to the watersheds of the two municipal systems, is virtually assured. The United States senate yesterday passed the Colorado Springs-Manitou land bill, which gives the two cities the right to fence, police and patrol the 15,000 acres for protection of the water supply.

The bill, which was passed by the house at the last session, was slightly amended by the senate. After a conference between a joint committee of the house and senate for the purpose of agreeing on the form of the bill, it will go back to the house, where no difficulty is anticipated in regard to its final passage.

The withdrawal of the land from the Colorado Springs-Manitou land bill, which gives the two cities the right to fence, police and patrol the 15,000 acres for protection of the water supply.

The improvements that will be made to the Colorado Springs water system in event of the final passage of the bill include a pipe line to connect two of the large reservoirs and thus prevent all chances of pollution the construction of the greater reservoirs and enlargement of the present reservoirs. Manitou already has started work on a $40,000 reservoir near French creek, and probably will spend several additional thousands of dollars when the bill finally is passed.

TARIFF IS DISCUSSED BY DEMOCRATS IN COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The chemical schedule of the tariff law, producing 4 per cent of the total government revenue from customs was considered in executive session by the Democrats of the house committee on ways and means today. Many of the items taken up were raw materials used in the manufacture of medicines, paints, dyes and in tanning and dyeing processes, coal tar products and the like.

The schedule will not be materially altered from the Democratic bill which passed the house last session by a vote of 178 to 127 when the present Governor Hanna of North Dakota, the only Republican, voted with the Democrats for the measure. The revenue of $12,000,000 gained from the chemical schedule last year will not be substantially disturbed.

ASSEMBLY SETTLES DOWN TO BUSINESS

Committees Busy Sorting Out Various Bills That Were Introduced

By WALTER LAWSON WILDER

DENVER, Feb. 3.—While the time past for the introduction of bills to the general assembly is settling down to its regular work. The committee of the house and senate are busily engaged in sorting out the mass of measures that have been presented, and enough bills have been favorably reported to keep both houses busy with routine work.

This afternoon the house passed on second reading, by unanimous vote, Mrs. Lee's bill prohibiting the publication of the names or pictures of children accused of criminal acts or appearing in court as witnesses in such cases. As reported by the committee, the bill defined children as persons under 21 years of age. Representative Dailley of Aspen district, a newspaper man first moved an amendment fixing the age limit of publicity at 16 years but after several amendments to change to 15 Mrs. Lee and Mr. Ridgely, the two men members of the house, opposed the change. Mr. Ridgely, saying that "it would be better to have the age raised to 18" as he thought the publication of names and pictures in such cases was disgraceful and demoralizing. Mr. Dailley's amendment was adopted, however, and then the bill passed in committee of the whole by unanimous vote.

El Paso County Helped.

WILL BE DISTRIBUTED

In preparation for the election February 25 on the acceptance or rejection of the newly-drawn charter, the city council last night ordered the printing of the copies of the charter for distribution here. Copies may be obtained at the office of the Colorado City Argus, on Fifth street north of Colorado avenue.

The charter convention and the coming election occupied most of the attention of the council at its regular meeting last night. It was decided that the polling places should be the same as those used at the last election, and that the judges should be the same, with the exception of precinct 7, where the three judges are to be J. R. C. Stadler, William Lushinsky and Miss Maude Hennessy. In all the precincts the judges are to appoint the clerks for the election. Alderman Falk and Reid were appointed a committee to ask the county clerk for the registration in Colorado City, and it was reported that the cost of the charter convention to the city was $68.94.

The report on the water system on the south side for the month of January showed the city's share of the receipts to be $124.17, with its share of the expenses amounting to $60 for the salary of J. P. Jackson, who had charge of the business, and $15 for the caretaker. A check for $59.17, the net profit, was turned over to the city. The by-laws of the water system were referred to the city attorney.

The only other business to come before the council was the presenting of routine reports of officers and committees. The report of the auditing committee on the treasurer's books showed $23,728.94 on hand January 1, 1913, and that of the police chief 32 arrests during the last month. There were four fires during the month, 110 loads weighed on the city scales, and four burials.

SUFFRAGE LIES PLANNING
"EXCITING CIVIL WAR"

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The suffragettes are planning an "exciting civil war" in London, according to an announcement by Mrs. Pankhurst today.

"The militant suffragettes," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "are preparing all sorts of attractive bait. The government must quickly give us the vote or go. The women will use every method constitutional as well as unconstitutional to turn the cabinet out."

Detectives in great numbers are on watch in all the London streets, but the suffragettes continue their successful raids. The contents of 30 letter boxes were destroyed today, but the perpetrators of the outrages escaped without detection.

So that it can be used in the dark a fountain pen has been equipped with a tiny electric searchlight and a storage battery by its English inventor.

"THE SIREN" PLEASES FAIR-SIZED AUDIENCE

A fair-sized audience gathered at the Siren at the theatre last night, and enjoyed two hours of clean, sparkling fun. The comedy by Lew Pall and the book is originally the work of Lew Stum and A. M. Wagon, with the Americanization of Harry K. Smith. The production has been variously styled with variety and a musical comedy, but it is more a vehicle for the dancing of Donald Brian, who is as playful as a cat.

Carroll McComas, a dancing country girl who captivated Brian, the Marquis de Havilland, is the leading woman. She dances extremely well, with a peculiar grace of her own, and has a sympathetic, pleasing voice, though it lacks strength.

The plot is completely in his absence, but from the whirl of dances and songs, one glances that the comedy is not only enjoyable, but also a specimen of the marquis's handwriting, thus identifying him as the anonymous writer of verses ridiculing the emperor. The marquis is ordered banished, but later the emperor's friends in order to save him, learn that he did not knowingly betray him as he thought, and the usual happy ending results.

Some good comedy is worked into the plot—if plot it can be called, especially by Will West as Hamlet, a veterinary, whom Lolotte's parents wish her to marry. Florence Morrison, in the part of Frau Eisenberg, keeper of a post tavern, also is worthy of mention. West and Miss Morrison gave a laughable parody of dances by Brian and Miss McComas.

Harry T. Bell executed several eccentric dances in a manner that called forth much applause, and two or three of the choruses also gave some pleasing dances.

The costumes are fresh and pretty, and the songs and dances are catchy. "Sirens So Fair," "Wallflower," "O, Do Step the Two-Step" and "Good-by, Little Girls, Good-by," were especially noteworthy.

PARIS AUTO BANDITS TO BE PUT ON TRIAL

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Parisians eagerly awaited the beginning of the trial of the gang of 24 automobile bandits who terrorized the French capital and its environs a year ago.

They committed many murders and audacious robberies, until their leader, Jules Bonnot, the demon chauffeur, was killed in April after a fierce battle against thousands of police and troops.

The crimes committed by this notorious gang were often of a most daring character and frequently were carried out in broad daylight. The first record of their operations deals with the theft of a large quantity of guns, revolvers and daggers from a shop in Paris in November, 1911. Then in rapid succession followed robberies and murders. Several branch banks in the suburbs were raided and even the Bank of France did not escape their efforts, for they made an attempt to rob it of $200,000.

The police were special marks for their hatred. They murdered a patrolman at midday, opposite the principal railroad terminus in Paris.

They also killed Assistant Superintendent Juin of the Paris detective department and at the same time wounded Chief Inspector Colman.

The list of accusations against them includes 23 murders.

Of the accused brought up for trial today three were young women—Anne Maitrejean, Marie Vuillemin and Barbe Leclerc—who were closely connected with the bandits in their operations.

The trial is expected to last several weeks.

A completely equipped laundry car has been installed on a Russian railroad for the use of troops while traveling or in the field.

The Quickest, Simplest Cough Cure

Easily and Cheaply Made at Home. Saves You $2.

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup enough to last a family a long time. You couldn't buy as much or as good cough syrup for $2.50.

Simple as it is, it gives almost instant relief and usually stops the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. This is partly due to the fact that it is slightly laxative, stimulates the appetite and has an excellent tonic effect. It is pleasant to take, children like it. An excellent remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, sore lungs, asthma, throat troubles, etc.

Other coughing remedies are made with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Pinex is one of the oldest and best known medicinal agents for the throat membranes. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacal and all the other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this recipe have endeared it to thousands of households in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The I. F. Co., 24, W. 4, N. Y.

Hollow Horn Bear
Wants to Attend
the Inauguration

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Hollow Horn Bear of South Dakota, an Indian chief, and the original of the picture of the Indian on the five-dollar treasury certificate, has written to the inaugural committee through Senator Gamble of South Dakota expressing a desire to attend the inauguration. The chief desires to present to the new president a great peace pipe, which he declares is the highest honor the Indians of South Dakota can confer on the "great white father."

If President-elect Wilson approves the plan, Hollow Horn Bear will bring with him a group of Indian chiefs, and the gift will be presented with tribal ceremonies. The pipe which Hollow Horn Bear would present is similar to those presented by the Indians to their own chiefs.

For the first time in history, women will participate in the inaugural parade. These women, 200 strong, wearing uniforms, and representing the National Peace congress, will form a section of their own in the inaugural parade.

Suffragists Complete Plans

Plans were completed today by suffrage leaders to hold daily street meetings beginning tomorrow and to continue through March 3, when the suffragist parade will take place. Most of the meetings will be held near the government departments with a view of interesting government employees in the suffrage cause. Suffragists of national prominence will address the meetings.

Mrs. Knute Nelson, wife of the senator from Minnesota, today agreed to represent Norway on the Norwegian float in the section of the suffragist parade devoted to countries where women vote.

The American Federation of Labor, through President Compters, has sent invitations to labor unions throughout the country, urging union men to have their women relatives take an active part in the suffrage parade.

COURT DECISION

Indictments involved in today's decision as referring solely to the organization of the United Shoe Machinery company.

Attorneys of the department said the decision would not affect any other pending antitrust suits.

Does Not Affect Case

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—United States District Attorney Asa P. French, who has charge of the government's case against the United Shoe Machinery company, said tonight that today's adverse decision of the United States supreme court which sustained United States District Judge Putnam of Boston, in throwing out two of the five counts in the two indictments against the company, did not affect the merits of the controversy. Mr. French said: "While I have not seen the full text of the opinion of the supreme court in the shoe machinery case, it is perfectly clear that the decision does not in any way affect the merits of the controversy, or throw any light upon the final determination either of the indictment which is still pending, or of the bill in equity which is awaiting the action of congress upon the issue of the publicity of the hearings before the special examiner."

One of Criminal Pleading

"The question which has just been decided by the supreme court was merely one of criminal pleading. The great and important issue between the people of the United States and the United Shoe Machinery company is whether or not the latter is a monopoly, in violation of the Sherman act and this depends largely, if not wholly, upon the view which the courts will ultimately take regarding the tying clause in the leases, or, generally speaking, of the patent question involved.

"Upon these matters, the court expressly declines to pass, apparently for the reason that they were not presented by the record, and says in effect that it must accept without question the interpretation of the lower court which regarded the indictment as merely referring to the organization of the company, not to the 'tying clause' leases.

"Incidentally, the court has sustained the government in a very important general contention, which is that the criminal appeals act, by virtue of which this indictment was presented for their determination, has not been repealed as counsel for the shoe machinery company argued that it was, by the judicial code which went into effect January 1, 1912."

CONVICT MILK DEALERS FOR BOOSTING PRICE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 3.—A verdict of guilty was returned tonight by the jury in the district court against the Minneapolis Milk company, and A. R. Ruhnke, president of the corporation, charged with conspiracy to raise the price of milk.

The case, which has been on trial for several days, was prosecuted under a state law prohibiting combinations for the purpose of controlling the price of commodities.

Attorneys for the defense said the case would be appealed to the supreme court.

Shortly before the jury retired, officers of the company and other dealers announced a reduction in the price of milk of 1 cent a quart.

Indictments have been returned against six other milk companies on similar charges.

Increase Price of Milk

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Dairy farmers of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan gathered here today to attend the meeting of the Milk Producers association, determined to increase the price of milk to bottlers and retailers to $1.00 a hundredweight, or 3 cents a quart.

The wholesale price of milk to retailers has been $1.25-2-3 per hundredweight, or 2-3-4 cents a quart.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1913.
PRESS CENSORSHIP IN DENVER

The Denver newspapers can find nothing flattering in the recent organization of a "Citizen's Protective League," formed for the avowed purpose of elevating their tone and moral standards. The League has a Board of Directors including about fifty of the most prominent men and women in the city, and its members wear a button inscribed "Better Your City." What it expects of the Denver newspapers is thus stated:

1. That no news story, editorial or advertisement be published which is unfit for a 15-year-old boy or girl to read.
2. That false stories, misrepresentations and exaggerations of all kinds be eliminated.
3. That stories of divorce, murder, suicide and other forms of crime and immorality be kept in the background.
4. That the petty quarrels and constant warfare between the newspapers be permanently discontinued.
5. That all stories which, though having a basis of fact, might be hurtful to Colorado or to any city in Colorado, be repressed as far as possible.
6. That malicious or unwarranted statements in regard to Colorado, or to any city or citizen of Colorado, or to any legitimate industry of Colorado be barred from publication.

This is a platform on which any reputable newspaper ought to be willing to stand without waiting for its patrons to bring pressure through organization. But the League states only the plain truth when it declares in an advertisement:

Blackmail and the fear of blackmail have worked incalculable harm to the city of Denver. Prosperous enterprises, perfectly legitimate in character, have been seriously crippled and in some cases absolutely driven out of business by vicious newspaper attacks.

Capital is timid and will not take any undue risk. The local representative of a large eastern manufacturer recently stated that his company had thought of locating a branch in Denver, but that upon investigation it was decided not to do so for the present at least, on account of the "unsettled conditions" brought about by the newspapers.

Why do we support newspapers which hurt business and frighten capital out of the state? Rise up good people of Denver, and drive the scourge of vicious journalism from our midst.

In its effort to attain these ends the League has gone a step further and caused to be introduced in the Legislature two bills aimed to regulate the press. One imposes a penalty of a fine or imprisonment, or both, on the owner, manager, editor or reporter of any newspaper, or other person, who shall publish or cause to be published in any newspaper, indecent or disgusting details (whether true or not) of any crime, vice, scandal or other matter which shall have a tendency to corrupt private morals or to offend common decency, or to make vice or crime seem attractive. The other bill is a libel measure, much more drastic than the present law.

We are in thorough sympathy with the aim and purpose of these bills, especially the one first quoted, but it is plain that their framers have not solved the difficulty of making them sufficiently specific. There are times when even a rigid censorship of the news columns may not exclude details which a jury might construe as "disgusting," or as liable "to make vice or crime seem attractive." However, this is not an important objection to the bill, for unless court and jury were prejudiced there would be small chance of injustice. Certainly the enactment of the law would go far toward eliminating the conditions in Denver which have brought about the formation of the League.

The proposed libel law is so drastic as to be of very doubtful value. It provides for the recovery of heavy damages by any person, firm or corporation as the result of the publication of a false statement. Even though such statement be the result of negligence and notwithstanding any amendments which the publisher may make. Moreover, "proof of the falsity of the publication shall be prima facie evidence of negligence on the part of the defendant."

The last provision is both stupid and vicious, for it means that no matter how careful the newspaper man might be to verify every detail, if a statement is afterwards shown to be incorrect he cannot introduce evidence to prove that he was not negligent, and is thereby automatically convicted and "the jury shall have the right to award punitive damages."

The Protective League's Libel bill ought to be defeated, or at least amended to eliminate these features. As it stands it is a clear invasion of the freedom of the press, for it would render impossible frank criticism of the acts of both persons and corporations.

THE PARCEL POST

A STATEMENT of the volume of business done by the newly established Parcel Post service in its first month has not been made, but enough is known of the workings of the service to show its complete success. In the first fifteen days of January, when there were but twelve working days, in forty-five of the largest cities, which produce almost 50 per cent of the total postal revenue, the volume of Parcel Post business was almost $400,000. A little more than 5,000,000 outgoing parcels were dispatched, averaging in weight eighteen and a half ounces each.

The annual report of the Postmaster-general, just published, was prepared before the Parcel Post law went into effect, but Mr. Hitchcock does not hesitate to express his belief "that experience will show the rates to be higher in some instances than is necessary in order to maintain the service at cost." He therefore, recommends that "the restriction that places an eleven-pound limit on the weight of Parcel Post mail should be regarded as merely tentative."

The eleven-pound limit was adopted to conform to the International Postal rules, which fix this as the maximum weight of parcels to be mailed abroad. But this fact has no necessary bearing on the operation of the Parcel Post within the limits of the United States. If it is found that the weight limit can be considerably raised without a corresponding increase in the cost of handling, it should be done by all means. The usefulness of the Parcel Post service certainly would be greatly extended thereby, and since the service exists solely for the public benefit, Congress should not hesitate to amend the law in whatever way may be most practicable.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS

A FEW days ago we called attention to the avoidable loss of life caused by trespassing on railway property. Since then a report has been published giving the figures for Colorado during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, as made by the railroads to the State Railway Commission. It appears that 95 people were killed outright and 1,251 injured on the railways of this state in the period named, and of these 52, or more than half of those killed, were neither employees nor passengers but trespassers, without any right on the railway property. The percentage of deaths among trespassers in Colorado is much higher than is shown in the country as a whole.

A bill is now pending in the legislature which makes trespassing on railroad tracks a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or both. Railway officials say they have been handicapped in stopping this useless slaughter by the lack of laws providing for the punishment of trespassers. If this measure will attain the desired end it ought to be passed.

THE CITY PARKS

COLORADO SPRINGS boasts of the finest park system possessed by any city of its size in the country. Yet the annual report of the Park Commission, just published, shows how sadly inadequate its revenues are when compared with the necessary expenditures. For instance, a single cloudburst last summer did damage in Monument Valley Park amounting to $6,147, or nearly one-fourth of the total expenditures of the Board for the year.

Here is an opportunity for some public spirited citizen or citizens with abundant means to do something that will contribute substantially to the beautification of Colorado Springs. Ten thousand dollars, lightly expended, would add wonderfully to the attractiveness of Monument Valley Park. Who will be the first to give the Park Commission the money?

"LET HIM WHO IS WITHOUT SIN," ETC.
To the Editor of The Gazette:
The following is taken from The Gazette, this morning's issue:

All sidewalks in the city must be cleared of snow by 10 o'clock this morning in compliance with orders from the police department issued last night. Those who refuse or neglect to obey the order will be taken into police court.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock, as I was passing the city hall, I noticed that the sidewalk was still covered with snow. It seems that the police department was too busy making arrests to see to their own walks. Are the officials exempt from their own orders? Are they privileged characters? I think they are not, and I would suggest that they see that their own walks are cleared before issuing such orders.

FROM OTHER PENS

THE BOY SCOUTS.

From the Kansas City Journal.
When this country was first introduced to the boy scouts idea there was instant alarm among the numerous lest this movement might lead to a propagation of militarism in the coming generations of American youth. There were visions of a new army that would rise to oppress the people and popularize the trade of war. Most of these fears were aroused before the public actually knew anything about the boy scouts or the real purpose of the organization. The objectors saw in the name and general features of the movement the grim ghost of something warlike and fearsome.

As the country has become better acquainted with the boy scouts and realizes that the movement is one for the betterment of boys by making discipline and training attractive, the fears have been allayed and now one hears nothing but good words for the organization and its members. In Kansas City a few devoted young men have given their time and effort to the work of enlisting and training troops of scouts, and the general public has been asked to contribute very little to the project. The leaders of the movement have felt that their work would justify itself fully in the public mind. And it has.

Kansas City will have the opportunity of learning more about the boy scouts when they give their entertainment in Convention hall. Here the real purpose of the movement will be manifest in the exhibition of the boys themselves. A program of varied interest has been prepared and the boys have gone into it with an enthusiasm that deserves generous recognition. No doubt many people will be surprised to observe the entire absence of anything "military," although the affair will be intensely patriotic. It will be a good show with a deeper meaning than the average observer will attach to it.

The Boy Scout organization is intended to interest boys in the things that instinctively appeal to them and to direct this interest into good and useful channels. The average boy possesses a primitive passion for out of door activities. Recognizing this, the boy scouts try to make good use of it instead of allowing him to drift into evil habits and unwholesome associations. The boys are taught many useful things and their sense of honor is developed. Truthfulness, honesty, manliness and mercy are cardinal principles of the boy scouts. With these things in mind no sensible man or woman can withhold praise for the organization as a whole and for the splendid men who are helping it along.

VANISHING TYPHOID.

From the New York Tribune.
The latest report of the war department on the use of the typhoid fever inoculation confirms the faith of those who have advocated that method of stamping out the disease. In the last 10 months there have been only 12 cases of typhoid and only two deaths in our army of 27,000 men. Both deaths and most of the other cases occurred among men who had not been inoculated.

As a proof of the usefulness of inoculation it is pointed out that many of the soldiers have been in service under conditions which a few years ago would have produced 100 cases and 25 deaths. The rate of typhoid in the army, which was 5.68 a thousand in 1906, 3.55 in 1907 and was reduced to 2.32 in 1910, has suddenly declined since the introduction of the serum and was only .50 in 1911 and .18 in 1912. These figures are a striking demonstration of what has been accomplished by the army surgeons not merely for the men in the military service, but for the whole country. The example which they have set in proving the safety, practicality and efficacy of inoculation to the American people must lead to its large use among civilians.

Our Kind Relatives

By RUTH CAMERON.

Why is it, I wonder, that the average relative regards it as one of his or more likely her—unavoidable duties to frankly criticize everything about her closest relatives.

If you show a new gown or hat to a friend, she will pick out all the best points about it, all the adornments that induced you to buy it, and warm the cockles of your heart by commenting upon them.

"Isn't it a wonderful color," she will say, "and what cunning buttons!" Try it on and let me see how it looks on you. What a pretty skirt, and so becoming to you. Makes you look so slender. Yes, it certainly is a bargain."

Show the same gown to your relative, and though she may see the good points, she certainly gives no sign of having done so. On the contrary she kindly points out any disadvantages which she fears may have escaped your eyes. "The waist is a little too small across the back, isn't it, and the sleeves are too short. Quer how they almost always make the sleeves too short. It is a lovely color, isn't it, but so trying. Too bad for few people can wear it. That lace is cheap, but then, they always put cheap lace in ready-made things. That's one of the reasons why I like to have my things made up. Of course you can rip it out and put in something better."

The closer the relationship, the closer is the degree of frankness, of course. By the way, have you ever happened to notice how the word "frank" like the word "criticism," has been given an unpleasant meaning by usage. "Criticism," originally meant "to pass judgment on the merits or qualities of." Evidently the judgment was usually unfavorable, for criticism is now generally used in the sense of "pick flaws." The first meaning given for "frank" is "free in uttering one's real opinion." For a that, the opinion might be the most favorable in the world. But somehow, when anyone says, "I am going to be frank with you," we don't usually anticipate praise nor get it either.

To return to the original subject—the other day I showed a new gown to a very close relative, and she delivered a monologue somewhat like the above upon it. One or two things she did praise, but for the most part she picked out flaws. "Well," I sighed to myself, as I laid it away in its tissue paper bed of state, "I'm sorry she doesn't like it, for she has good taste."

What was my astonishment to hear later from a mutual friend that she, my critical relative, had been praising my gown to others as one of the loveliest she had seen. She had even compared it favorably to a Persian creation of one of her wealthy friends, which she had been praising to me. And yet, from her comments I had actually thought she didn't like it.

Is unfavorable criticism really a duty we owe our relatives? Must we keep all our pleasant words for our friends? I wonder.

Advertising

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Sings"

Advertising is the voice of business. Some business can get along without advertising just as some men can make a living although dumb. But both are uphill jobs.

Advertising began when the eager merchant went out on the street and jogged the pedestrian by the elbow to get his attention. This was wearisome work and sometimes the pedestrian got back. Nowadays the merchant can jog a million men by the elbow through the public print while he himself is beating a worried golf ball out of a sand pit.

Advertising is a peddler who brings the wares of the world into the house each day and tells you how cheap and good they are. But it is more desirable than peddlers, because when you are tired of a peddler you can't fold him up and put him on the sashy shelves. Advertising formerly consisted of the truth. Then imagination and eloquence came to the aid of the truth and for a while it looked as if they would crowd it out entirely.

With the aid of imagination a man can sell cactus deserts and colored water, automobiles and college educations, hymn books and patent crackerjacks, time bombs and trained fleas, skyscrapers and seed potatoes, fountain pens and patents of nobility, chewing gum, forests and blue sky.

By advertising a man can dispose of a mountain of sawdust at $1 per ounce, true weight. Without advertising he can offer frankincense and myrrh to all comers free of charge until the stuff spoils on his hands.

Nowadays the live business man begins by hiring an advertising writer with the tongue of angels and a seductive way in paragraphs. Then he buys $1,000,000 worth of advertising space, and lastly he decides what to sell.

Advertising makes millionaires and presidents, makes great actors out of poor ones with indifferent filling, supplies widows with husbands, babies with homes and deserts with people. Advertising gets some people into society and others into jail. Advertising supports literature and makes nations boom. The country which advertises waxes exceeding great and immigration progresses while the land which lies no press agents crumbles away and is discovered by archaeologists in the dim past.

Advertising made Homer great thousands of years after he was born and introduced Rembrandt to admiring friends 4,000 years after he had retired from circulation. Chicago consists of Goshen, Indiana, plus advertising. Advertising has kept Sarah Bernhardt young and attractive for sixty-several years and the lack of it made Poe starve at forty.

Advertising is the voice of business. But it should not be allowed to rise to a hoarse shriek and disturb the landscape.

THE HASKIN LETTER

THE REPUBLIC OF CHINA
XIX.—THE PROBLEM OF POPULATION
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Ancestor worship and over-population are the twin curses of China. The former is responsible for the latter and the two together breed such evil offspring as debased women, murdered girl babies, high death rate, poverty and famine. Abject reverence of dead forebears and chain-lightning breeding of descendants are responsible for China's ills. Whatever good there may be in the care the Chinese devote to old people and the way they deify the dead is made valueless by the evil results in the train of their customs.

China is great land and the Chinese are a great people, but until ancestor worship becomes sane and the bearing of children becomes humane, China will not take its place in the world's affairs to which its inherent worth entitles it. Less worship of the dead and more attention to the living should be the country's adoption of a republican form of government and other western customs will be only of relative value.

In the first place ancestor worship in China is due to misguided superstition rather than to piety. A Chinaman bows humbly before the tablets of his forefathers and offers up tokens before them on certain days in order that the gods may reward his goodness. He zealously brings children into the world not so much out of love for them but because they will be duty bound to support him in his old age, doing a step further in his pure materialism, he will murder his own girl babies because they marry early, and in thus transferring their filial piety to another family, are of no use to him. A Chinaman's sons in his old age take the place of an old-fashioned policy and a small block of government bonds. This plan of providing a haven against old age is also more certain than the western way. A westerner may never own a few bonds and might fail to keep up his annual insurance payments. But a Chinese will always have sons. If his own wife cannot bear at least one son, he is expected to take a "secondary wife" in order to bring about the desired result. The number of "secondaries" is limited only by the man's purse, and the babies so begot are considered legitimate. Should even these auxiliary spouses fail to bring forth the yearned for male support in his old age the man adopts some orphan, a boy, perhaps, whose entire family had been wiped out by disease or famine.

Girls Unwelcome.
In the meantime, the wife and concubines may be bearing girls babies with reckless rapidity. What becomes of them? The baby towers which seem in every part of China, rising muddy streams can tell you. The baby towers are a hole in the ground from which rises a round tower of mud-brick about five feet high. It is open at the top, with a board across. The unwelcome female infant is left on the board. Here it may die of starvation or exposure. Usually, however, another parent intent on doing away with his awful burden, and pushing the first baby off the board, puts his own in its place and leaves it to rot like a creature from the next murderer. By this procedure the Chinese credits themselves into believing that they do not really kill their own children. Many of these helpless girl babies are rescued by foreign and native mission workers who skulk near the death towers.

Little girls so rescued are reared and trained in the various foundling homes and schools. It is an encouraging fact that more and more babies are being disposed of their superfluous girls in this way, and some even promise to take them back later if they are ever able to do so. An increasing number are impelled nowadays to keep them anyway, even though they may have to sell them in times of famine. During such periods of stress, which are far too common, little girls are sold to strangers for as low as 50 cents apiece. The purchasers have never been accused of philanthropic motives. The girls who manage to stay in the family until marriageable, which is at the age of 15 or 16, are then turned over to their husbands for a sum of money, which varies according to the wealth of the groom's parents. They then become the groom's parents. They then become the child bearers of their erstwhile mates and the household drudges of their mothers-in-law. Deplorable prospect, isn't it?

Economic Pressure Responsible.
It must be said that economic pressure is partly responsible for this horrible infanticide. The girl babies would take the risk out of the mouths of the boys, and, of course, the boys must be saved up against the day when the father and mother are old and can no longer work. They then will be treated with great respect by the children and grandchildren, and the daughters-in-law will also work for them. When they die the sons and their families will then honor their memory. In other words, whatever is right. It is the custom decreed by their revered ancestors and therefore must be absolutely just and proper. The average Chinese is too poor to support even a fair-sized family by his own labor, and standards of living, to say nothing of ours; consequently, the girls must go. The boy-made so fortunate by the mere accident of birth to be allowed the simple privilege of living, will do well if he himself resists the effects of poor nourishment, filth and disease long enough to grow to manhood.

It is a bitter struggle merely to exist in China, and the critic who realizes this plain fact can see the Chinese point of view. One who does so bleeds in sympathy, even though the evil will not close on the cause of it all. The Chinese are not naturally vicious; on the contrary, they are just as human as we are. They are slaves to custom. Centuries of ingrained habit have made them callous in this respect. Extreme observance of duties supposed to be due to ancestors has blinded their appreciation of human rights. The living must suffer and die that the dead may be honored. Human life is about the cheapest thing in China. There is so much of it that is already in the way. Their system makes it so easy to bring in new life to replace whatever is lost by the way-side.

Would Not Aid Drowning.
A group of Chinese stand placidly by while you, or even one of their own kind, struggles wildly in the water. One or more finally agrees to rescue you, of you promise to pay so much money. They may even hold out for a higher sum as you are about to go down for the last time. This is not uncharitable cruelty. It is blunted compassion. Life is so very cheap, even their own, that a few more or less are of no account. When their system forces them to destroy or give away or sell their own children, with equanimity if not pleasure, how can they be expected to risk their lives, or even to be exerted unduly, to save a man who has foolishly or unwittingly endangered his own? More than this, the Chinaman on the shore reasons that the person struggling for life in a moment of peril may have elected to die prematurely and thus avoid further misadventure incident to living. So why interfere? If it is a case of drowning there is still less chance of being pulled out, even though a foreigner is concerned, for the reason that the Chinese believe there are spirits in the water to whom the drowning one is going willingly or is being called to the depths; hence, the folly of trying to prevent such a death. To do so might incur the ill will of the evil spirits and thus bring about their own undoing and fasten disgrace upon the name given them by their revered ancestors.

It is an encouraging fact that more and more babies are being disposed of their superfluous girls in this way, and some even promise to take them back later if they are ever able to do so. An increasing number are impelled nowadays to keep them anyway, even though they may have to sell them in times of famine. During such periods of stress, which are far too common, little girls are sold to strangers for as low as 50 cents apiece. The purchasers have never been accused of philanthropic motives. ARGUMENTS BEGUN IN O'BRIEN-BOLLES SUIT

Attorney for Plaintiff Says O'Brien Made Business Deal Profitable

Arguments begun yesterday in the suit of William O'Brien against Richard J. Bolles in the district court. It is expected will be completed today, and the case probably will go to the jury late this afternoon or early tomorrow.

Judge J. W. Shearor yesterday morning sustained a motion made Friday by Attorney Henry McAllister and dismissed the suit of William O'Brien against the Florida Fruit Lands company. The court overruled another motion asking for a directed verdict in favor of Bolles.

Attorney S. H. Kinsley, in his argument for the plaintiff, said that Bolles, started on a shrewd and through the brains and energy of O'Brien, accumulated approximately $2,000,000 within about six years from an original investment of $4,000. Offered O'Brien $20,000.

When O'Brien was broken in health, as the result of his devotion to business, Kinsley said, Bolles chose that time to deprive him of his just compensation by offering him $20,000 for services that had brought in millions of dollars.

O'Brien had the greatest confidence in Bolles, his intimate friend, said Kinsley, and had often talked of the time when they would be associated in business. When such association was formed it was the great work of O'Brien in the acquisition of lands and securing the payment for them that resulted in millions of dollars being brought in. O'Brien devised the plan that got the money.

Former Governor Jennings encountered no difficulty in securing lands, said Attorney Kinsley, for when he resigned as general counsel for the Florida land board he used the knowledge he acquired there for the benefit of Bolles. For 12 days, services Jennings demanded $50,000, he said.

Says O'Brien Devised Plan. "It was O'Brien who suggested large purchases to eliminate competition," said Mr. Kinsley, "and he devised the plan for the settlement of the lands. It was he who arranged the contract with the Florida trustees to include a release of land at $2 an acre in the event of reverses so that under such conditions, Bolles would not lose all. Bolles was willing that O'Brien should risk reverses, but was not willing to share the prosperity that O'Brien's services had made."

PROF. PALMER OPENS SERIES OF LECTURES

Poetry, He Declares, Tends to Make Sentimental People Silly

Poetry tends to make many people silly, so that sentimental persons should be later years turn from poetry and cease to brood over their own feelings. This was the rather surprising statement with which Prof. George Herbert Palmer of Harvard last night in Perkins hall began the introductory lecture in his series on the English poets.

In early life, he said, the emotions are active, vivid, vague, so it is but natural for young persons to turn to poetry for the expression of feelings they cannot put into words. This is, however, a wholly emotional feeling, without depth. In later years it leads to sentimentality.

Poetry, however, is more than the mere expression of emotion. It can be made to strengthen, not to weaken, character. It pictures mankind; it enlarges man's horizon. Imagination, therefore, is what Dr. Palmer commends in poetry; the enlargement of one's self through poetry. Browning felt and expressed the moods of all men, and can make the reader enter into those moods and sympathize with men of other ways than his. Shakespeare makes the reader sympathize with his villains as well as with his heroes.

Glad to Talk to Public. Perkins hall was well filled for the first of Dr. Palmer's lectures, many townspeople as well as students being present. Professor Palmer expressed his pleasure in visiting Colorado Springs once more, and his gratification that one course of his lectures is to be for the public. "Every college should look after the intellectual interests of its community," he said. "An uninterested community is detrimental to any college; the college is of necessity part of the community."

Professor Palmer expressed no alarm that literature is not today the prominent part of college life and endeavor, but that it was in his time. He thinks that the pursuit of wealth, rather than being ignoble, is worthy. The man of money, he thinks, has larger ideals in the United States than in any other country. In France money itself is the end; in England rank is sought; but in the United States money is sought for because of the power it gives, and this power includes the ability to look after the interests of others, to secure education for the children, to attain widespread power through the cultivation of those powers than the leisured man may cultivate.

But this is, after all, a secondary ideal. When wealth is got, nothing is got, except the means to an end. And literature points out the real worth of life. Poetry has something for all; it is vile, not silly; it does not express a mere passive attitude.

The taste for poetry can best be cultivated, Professor Palmer advised, by the constant reading and re-reading of some one poet. It matters not which one, merely that he be a real poet.

The thorough mastery of one poet will lead to a desire to study others. He advised that poetry be committed to memory, for careful study in odd moments.

Read Poet You Don't Like. "Get someone to read to you from a poet you don't like and he does," he said. "The reader will give you his poet's point of view, which you have not apprehended. Don't judge a poet for what he hasn't, but for what he has."

Professor Palmer read a dozen widely divergent poems, from a mass of different authors, and then pointed out that they all had a certain common traits which make them great poetry. These traits, as he pointed them out, were unity, an emotional appeal to universal human life, language of special beauty, a harmony of sound, and, in each case, an individual point of view in looking at the world.

It is of the point of view of certain of the great English poets that Professor Palmer is to treat in his lectures. They will be, he said, the poets he loves. He will speak not as a scientist, but as an amateur. Literature, he said, is not his specialty; he is a philosopher. But it has been his joy through life to teach poetry; and in his lectures he hopes to communicate something of what he has enjoyed to his audiences.

Next Thursday night he will lecture on Chaucer and Spenser. The other poets of whom he will treat are George Herbert, Pope, Wordsworth, Tennyson and Browning.

TOMORROW WILL SEE BEGINNING OF LENT

Shrove Tuesday and Ash Wednesday the Heralds of Penitent Season

Of the heralds of the Lenten season, Shrove Tuesday, today, and Ash Wednesday, tomorrow, Tuesday has the most names and has experienced the greatest changes in observation. It is variously called Shrove Tuesday, Shrove Tide, Eastern's Eve, Pancake Tuesday and Mardi Gras. The last term being the most common in this country. Tomorrow, Ash Wednesday, marks the beginning of the 40 days of Lent, which will end Easter Sunday, March 23.

Shrove Tuesday, the original name for today, and indicates the original purpose of the Shrove-tide, or Shrift-tide, the time for sorting or solemn confession in preparation for the coming of Lent. Originally it probably was too solemn to admit, for Lent gave way to the carnival, the farewell to things of the flesh, which was celebrated with such vivacity and abandon that exhausted nature joined with religion in demanding the rest and abstinence entailed by the Lenten period. This lively performance lasted for six days and in France an officer was chosen to preside over the festivities much like the "King of the New Orleans Mardi Gras."

A Rooster in the Celebration. "There was an old custom of Eastern's Eve," long since abandoned, which typified a vicarious atonement for Saint Peter's denial of Christ. The atonement was rendered by an unfortunate rooster—suggested, doubtless, by the cock which did not crow until Peter had thrice denied his Lord. The sacrificial bird was tied to a stake by a cord long enough to let it dodge, and the thrower, who, at 22 yards, could knock down the bird and catch it before it regained its feet, was adjudged to have won it. The "bird" soon became a sort of gambling game, the owner of the bird charging two pence for three "shys" and tripling the rooster for weeks beforehand to dodge the sticks thrown at it. Throughout the Lenten period the custom was carried on in a more humane manner by substituting a puppet, known as "Jack of Lent," for the rooster.

So also have passed the "callops" of salt meat on Galton Monday before Lent, though many families still observe the day with a substitution of bacon and eggs, and the sackcloth and ashes—and the later modification of public manifestation against unrepentant sinners of Ash Wednesday, which now marks only with special church services the beginning of the Lenten season.

The fasting season has become so modified in modern times that in place of being a period of mortification of the flesh and painful abstinence, as it was originally, Lent is now regarded more generally by society folk as a welcome respite from social duties and obligations.

Relief Fund Ordinances Are Not Satisfactory

The new relief fund ordinances apparently are not satisfactory to members of the police and fire departments. The police say that the plan is not so satisfactory as when they managed it themselves, as they now state that they pay more dues and receive less in case of illness or injury. The dues were taken out of the salary warrants for the first time yesterday. Although there was considerable objection to the plan, the members of the police force signed an order authorizing Auditor Henderson to withhold the dues. A similar order was signed by members of the fire department, but one of the firemen protested in a notation on the communication.

SMALL BOY BECOMING EXPERT ON MOTOR CARS

Another study has been added to the small boy curriculum—this time it is automobiles, and there is no atmosphere of "forced learning" about this. Unlike arithmetic, geography and spelling, the fascination of the motor car has filled the head of Young America with motor car knowledge that outstrips his elders.

An amusing incident was told yesterday by G. W. Blake, the Hudson dealer. A motorist, with a party of friends, alighted from his car downtown. As the car pulled up alongside the curb, a small boy shouted: "O, you Howard E. Coffin!" Mention of the name of Mr. Coffin, who is a famous motor car designer, caused the motorist to look about for its origin.

Presently he noticed the boy on the sidewalk. "Here, son," he called. "What do you mean by 'O, you Howard E. Coffin?' Mr. Coffin isn't in that car." "I know it," the boy came back. "But your Hudson—that's his latest car. I know." And the boy, triumphantly pointed to the triangle trademark on the radiator, exemplifying the fact that he had acquainted himself with the distinguishing features of the different makes of automobiles.

Another story, illustrating the rapidity with which the Twentieth century small boy picks up motor car facts was the one told yesterday of the make of a motorist's car as it pulled up to the curb in front of his home. The motorist jokingly told the boy he had guessed wrong. "But wait a minute, my boy. Didn't you see the Triangle on the radiator, as it says in the ads?" the motorist asked. "Sure that's right," the lad laughed without looking for the triangle. "It's a Hudson," he replied, as the memory of the advertised trademark of this make of car flashed across his mind.

What the Press Agents Say

"THE COUNTESS COQUETTE"

A novelty in musical offerings is "The Countess Coquette," which comes to the Grand Opera House, Saturday, February 2, matinee and night. It is a musical force from the pen of Marcel Lavey, French, in French, tuneful in music and plentiful in situations. It is presented by a company equal to any seen in this city this season. The story of the diversion concerns a count and his son, who fall in love with a girl and her mother, the count proposing to the 17-year-old girl, while the latter proposes to the more-than-doubtful mother. Neither couple knows of the other's affair, and both elope, intending to be married in Paris that afternoon, but Aristide Leveque, proprietor of the "Pink Poodle" inn, rendered desperate by bad business, strews the road with broken bottles, to attract motor traffic, and succeeds beyond his wildest expectations, with the eloping couples as his first victims. Complications may be imagined. They follow rapidly, and each with a laugh for the audience. Of course, there is a happy and wholly satisfactory consummation to this quadrangle tangle, and the arrival at this final act moves merrily to its cheerful climax. The prologue is beautifully staged in a rose garden scene. Pretty sentiment in song and love-making, with excellent trained chorus and delightfully charming costumes constitute the attractions. It forms a novel and delightful prelude to the farcical entertainment that follows. There has been a real sense of artistic effect exercised in the designing of the costumes and the scenery. The whole production is harmonious and attractive to the eye. The company is an unusually high-class one, with Knox Walsh in the leading part of Mr. Wilson has starred in "The Burgomaster," "The Land of Nod," and "The Silver Slipper." Vera Allen, known as the "American Girl," was prima donna with Raymond Hitchcock and "King Dodo." Temporal Saxe, with the original New York production of "Piff, Paff, Pout," "The Earl and the Girl," and "The Gay Musician." Harry Pauli, with "The Suburban Cinderella," and "The Heartbreakers," and Emile La Croix, with the Royal Grand Opera company of Berlin.

"ATMA, WHERE DO YOU LIVE?"

A return engagement of the delightful musical play, "Atma, Where Do You Live?" is announced for Thursday, February 6, at the Grand Opera House. No musical comedy seen here last season was more enthusiastically received or better liked than this translation from the French of Paul Herve, by George V. Hobarth than was "Atma," and aside from the liveliness of the situations and the brightness of the lines, the original music by Jean Briquet was universally pronounced entrancingly beautiful. The musical play was originally produced at Weber's theater, New York, in English, by Joseph M. Weber, although it had previously been seen in the German, in which language it has also been translated, being equally successful in both. In the English version it was apparently lost none of those suggestive qualities which gave it value as a French vaudeville, but while it possesses plenty of brightness, it nevertheless has nothing that will commend it to American audiences. Briefly, the story is that of a country youth who comes to Paris, the heir to a huge fortune. He is to become the possessor of his money 24 hours after the will is read, provided that he does not fall in love and make a proposal of marriage within that time. Atma, a beautiful girl, who is found in the house of the boy's uncle, under peculiar circumstances, is hired by that relative and his prospective son-in-law to seduce and marry the boy, to violate the provisions of the will. True to musical comedy, this is accomplished by really falling in love with him, and saves him from a forced marriage. Later, the girl is found to be typical of Broadway, and the uncle, being of the school of opinion that make reigning actresses popular with playgoers. Naturally, the chief interest center is a role of Atma, and for this Manager Weber is indebted for this season Miss Genee. Dress, a popular young prima donna, had last year appeared in the leading role in "The Countess Coquette." She will be remembered as a beautiful young woman with a splendid soprano voice, which will be heard to much advantage in the delightful musical bits in the play. Others in the company are Carlton King, Charles Wood, Harry Muddinger, Henry Sherwood, Herbert Hoxworth, Edward Nazie, J. Herbert Crowley, Bertha Whitely, Marie Annis and Dorothy Lewis.

M. VOLININ, IN "THE COUNTESS COQUETTE" AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2, MATINEE AND NIGHT.

In this tableau they illustrate the beginning of the waltz. This number everywhere excited the utmost interest. It is danced to the "Promenade" waltz of Johann Strauss. The waltz was danced for the first time during the "Revolution," brought to France from Germany in the Tyrolean form, but it was actually developed through the agency of the waltzmeister, Johann Strauss, to its present shape during the years, 1825 up to 1850.

In all pas de deux (duet dances), M. Volinin follows the movements of Mlle. Genee like her shadow. He is one of the most wonderful artists of the Russian school of the ballet, and has been seen before this season in the final appearance of Parlova in New York.

ADELINE GENE in TOPEKA

A reprint from the Topeka Capital, MLE. GENE, ARTIST.

Mlle. Adeline Genee, the Danish performance yesterday afternoon at the Grand Opera House, had been heralded the premiere dancer of the age and in the favor of Topeka audience. She and Mlle. Parlova, who danced here several seasons ago with her Russian ballet, will probably divide the crown. With Genee—more perfection of artistic attainment, perhaps; more intellect, more complete adherence to the rule of art, for art's sake, with Parlova, more free, more abandon, more recklessness of motion. At first, the audience yesterday did not quite get to the pictures presented in the history of dancing and dancers, the solo part taken by Genee, supported by a ballet of eight very charming and artistic dancers. Any such girls, all of them, excepting Mlle. Genee. The picture traced the history of dancing between the years 1710-1845, and Mlle. Genee, in her gown of Dresden, with powder and patches and braids, was most exquisitely delicate and dainty. The music was composed by Dora Bruck and Genee herself spent two years in the arrangement of the dances. Just at first it was beyond the reach of the audience. They didn't quite understand. Then the perfection and the beauty and the exquisite grace and the wonderful technique of the little dancer, as she swayed her lithe body and forth on the very tip of her toes, as she glided and pirouetted, every movement one of grace, every attitude the picture of a master of art, then the audience began to understand and Mlle. Genee was welcomed enthusiastically and enthusiastically. Genee, as she was called back, and after the famous hunting dance at the end, she was called again and again, and they gave her up reluctantly and under protest.

Willard Must Improve to Class With M'Carthy

By WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Although Jess Willard won an easy victory over Frank Bauer of St. Charles, at Fort Wayne, recently, the big fellow failed to impress the flat authorities with his fighting ability. Naturally Willard looked good when boxing a man 45 pounds lighter in weight, and over whom Jess had a decided advantage in height and reach. Close followers of the sport like Tom Jones and Fred Gilmore, however, asserted after the mill that Jess had a few things to learn about the game before he tackled Luther McCarthy. Willard displayed plenty of speed and footwork, and it was because of his dancing around the ring without being set to deliver a blow that brought the most criticism.

In the first two rounds it looked as if Jess was "pulling" his punches. He felled Bauer into leads any number of times, but failed to take advantage of the openings left by the St. Charles miller. Willard's judgment, it was said, was bad a time and several times he missed right uppercuts by six inches. If any of these had landed on the vital spot, Bauer certainly would have taken the count earlier in the contest.

Willard should have stopped his opponent earlier in the combat. It looked as if he wanted to give the fans an exhibition of his cleverness and allow Bauer to stay until he got ready to deliver the "sleep producer." When the big fellow did cut loose, he stopped his man in clean-cut fashion. By using his left hand to fello Bauer into an uncovered position, Willard stung him with a right uppercut, which sent Bauer to the canvas, and the referee refused to allow the bout to continue after Bauer tried to stagger to his feet.

After the bout it was learned that the blow which clipped Frank under the chin was the result of such an extent that it was necessary to have four stitches put in it at a hospital. Bauer never had a chance to win, but he showed the fans around the ring-side that Willard must learn a few things before he can hope to beat McCarthy or any of the other first-class heavyweights.

The injury to the knuckle of Willard's right hand will keep him idle for about two months, according to

CLABBY OUTPOINTS KNOCKOUT BROWN

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 3.—Jimmy Clabby of Hammond, Ind., outpointed George Knockout Brown of Chicago, in a 10-round bout here tonight. Clabby used his left to a great advantage and had the Greek covering and backing away through most of the bout. A score or more of state legislators and ministers were at the ringside, seeking information for the boxing bill which now is before the lawmakers.

The physician who is treating the injured leg of the boxer said that no bones had been broken, after he had taken an X-ray picture. The ligaments were torn, and it will take them longer to knit than a fracture. Willard punched his six-round bout with Billy in Philadelphia tomorrow night.

WOLVERTON TRYING TO BUY PLAYERS FOR COAST

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Harry Wolverton, manager of the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league, who was here today, attempted to purchase three recruits from the Chicago American league baseball club, and Martin Berghammer, a shortstop from the local National league team. Manager Callahan of the American league club told Wolverton he would do no "weeding out" until he had seen all of his recruits in action next spring.

The first division of the White Sox will play in Sacramento, March 12 and 13, and the second team, March 18 and 19.

From Los Angeles came word today that Manager Evers of the local National league team is trying to induce "Big Jeff" Overall to return here the coming season.

St. Augustine, with a romantic history, dating back beyond the arrival of the Spanish adventurers, is a city of never ending charm and interest. Ormond, Palatka, and Daytona are celebrated as winter resorts. Palm Beach, called "The Queen of Winter Resorts," has national repute for its wonderful hotels, of which The Royal Poinciana is most noteworthy. Miami, on Biscayne Bay, claims the most perfect climate on this coast, and here all outdoor amusements are enjoyed throughout the winter. Tampa and Key West are among Florida's most attractive cities, famed for their beauty, perfect climate, hotels and amusement features.
